

We are STRONGLY against the county taking over El Dorado's roads. The cons far outweigh the pros.

In our opinion #6 in the pros should actually be listed as a con. One of the reasons we all bought our property is the wonderful wooded drive. The drive into our development is what finalizes the escape from the city. Removing the trees to widen the road would be a huge detriment to the development's appeal.

There also exists the possibility that if the county takes over our roads our property taxes would increase and they would have the authority to assess further assessments for "improvements".
